Hocking College History

Hocking College has a rich history with its roots tied to the community and region.

The Hocking College Mission: We serve as a pathway to prosperity, teaching and inspiring all who seek to learn, growing careers and changing lives.

Known initially as Tri-County Institute (TCI), the institution opened in Autumn 1968. In 1969, TCI received a charter to grant degrees in 13 technical programs and, in 1970, held its first commencement ceremony with 117 graduates. At the time, it was the largest graduating class from any technical institute in the state's history.

In the 1970s, Tri-County Institute changed its name to Hocking Technical College (HTC) and saw dramatic increases in enrollment. The college also moved to Hocking Parkway and opened Hocking Heights, becoming the only two-year school in Ohio to have residence halls.

Throughout the 1980s, HTC continued to grow. As buildings and programs expanded, HTC became renowned for its Natural Resources, Nursing, Public Safety, and Culinary and Hospitality programs. During the 1990s, Hocking Technical College became known as Hocking College. A satellite campus was opened in Perry County, and the college acquired Lake Snowden, a live learning lab for Natural Resources Programs.

The Logan Energy Institute at Hocking College opened in 2009 in a new platinum lead certified building featuring alternative energy. From 2000 to the present, Hocking College has continued to be an economic driver for the region, preparing students for the workforce and transferring to four-year schools. The college looks back on its more than 50 years with gratitude and excitement for the future.
